Day 1: Arrive at Kansas City (MCI) airport and transport to Hampton Inn, Kansas City, MO.

After grouping up, we will bird in nearby Weston Bend SP (MO) on the bluffs above the Missouri River. It is a raptor migration spot and while most of that migration will be over, we may still pick up some accipiters as well as Black-capped Chickadee and White-breasted Nuthatch.

Day 2: Travel to Great Bend (KS) and begin birding the Cheyenne Bottoms area.

It is about a 3 ½ hour drive from Platte City to Cheyenne Bottoms, so we will stop and pick up a sandwich and have lunch at a rest stop before beginning our initial exploration. Cheyenne Bottoms will be loaded with waterfowl. This will include 3-5 species of goose including Snow, up to 17 duck species including possible Common Goldeneye and Northern Pintail. Four species of grebe including Western and Horned. Ring-necked Pheasant and shorebirds.

Day 3: Quivira National Wildlife Refuge

I hope this doesn't sound like more of the same, but all the birds listed above will be possible at Quivira, too. Sandhill, and if we are lucky, Whooping Cranes will be there. The shorebirds can include American Avocet, Stilt Sandpiper, American Golden Plover, Baird's Sandpiper, Wilson's and Red-necked Phalaropes, Long-billed Dowitcher. Then add in Franklin's Gull and White-faced Ibis, and we might stay until dark to try for Short-eared Owl. Sparrows will be a big attraction with White-crowned, Harris's, LeConte's, Vesper, Lincoln's, Fox, and Song all possible.

Day 4: Quivira NWR again

We will try to find what we missed the day before, like maybe Yellow-headed Blackbird, Sedge Wren or Winter Wren! We may revisit Cheyenne Bottoms as warranted.

Day 5: Drive to Manhattan, KS

Possible stop at Kanopolis Lake where more sparrows are possible, like Chipping, Field, American Tree, or Junco. Then, on to the Konza Prairie and Turtle Creek Reservoir.

Day 6: Leave Manhattan for Kansas City, Missouri for late morning to mid-day departures.
